BRITISH SAY FEAR OF NAZI-RED PARTNERSHIP LED HESS TO FLEE

GOAL SIGHTED FOR BRITISH SHIPPING AID

Officials Say Requested Two Million Tons of Boats Will Be Ready June 1.

KNOX OFFERS ENIGMA

Tells Military Engineers We May Have To Develop New Defense For Shipping.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt's goal of 2,000 000 tons of emergency shipping for immediate service to Great Britain will be reached by mid-June, informed officials said today.

Confidence that the shipping pool would be available at full strength within a month was expressed by officials who said it would include idle foreign ships to be taken over here, six new merchant ships scheduled for completion within 30 days and some cargo ships now engaged in intercoastal trade.

Intercoastal operators and representatives of the maritime commission meet in New York today. The conference is expected to result in a number of intercoastal ships—as many as 50, according to some estimates—being turned over to the shipping pool.

These developments came as Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox gave a new turn to the convoy controversy—closely associated with the program of more and more ships for Britain—by asserting that convoys may not be the solution to the British-aid problem.

"Possibly we will have to devise a new defense to see that the goods which we manufacture will reach the other side of the Atlantic," Knox told the American society of military engineers last night.

He did not explain "new defense," but his address further confused the discussion of convoys and raised question of what, if any, plans administration officials are considering as substitutes for convoys.

For weeks administration spokesmen—congressman and cabinet officers—have been urging that we use whatever means necessary to assure delivery of the goods we are manufacturing for Britain.

Basis for early completion of the 2,000,000-ton shipping pool, the United Press was informed, is the expectation that the ship requisition bill will become a law within a fortnight. It would permit the president to purchase, requisition, take title or to charter 83 idle foreign ships in American waters

The bill, to which Sen. Charles W Tobey, (R., N.H.) insists he will offer an anti-convoy amendment, is scheduled to reach the senate floor tomorrow. It was approved, 11 to 4, by the senate commerce committee yesterday.

Urges 'Slow Down' On Age Changes In Selective Service

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Declaring the selective service headquarters was "not going to cram anything down our throats," Chairman May (D., Ky.) of the house military committee called today for a thorough study of a proposal to defer older registrants from the call to arms.

May advocated a "go slow" policy on all proposed changes in the selective service act.

Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, deputy draft director, yesterday recommended an amendment which would permit the president to order deferments by age groups without removing the liability of those deferred from eventual military service.

Hershey, writing to Speaker Rayburn, did not suggest an age at which group deferment might start but informed officials said there had been considerable official discussion of postponing the training of all those 31 years old and more.

Farmer-Hero Who Captured Hess Tells How Nazi Talked of Young Son He Left Behind

(EDITOR'S NOTE—How he armed himself with a hayfork and captured Rudolf Hess, No. 3 man in the Nazi hierarchy, is described today in the following account of his adventure by David McLean, the Scottish ploughman who became a national hero overnight.)

By DAVID McLEAN
(As Told to International News Service)

GLASGOW, Scotland — I found Rudolf Hess in a field on the farm where I work, but I didn't know it was Hess at the time.

I took him to my cottage where he gossiped with my mother and relatives for an hour before the police took him away.

I was in the house and everyone else was in bed when I heard a plane overhead. I ran to the back of the farm and heard it crash and saw it burst into flames in a field 200 yards away. I was amazed and a bit frightened.

Then I saw a parachute dropping to earth and a man swinging in the harness. I concluded he was a German aviator bailing out and I raced to the house for help. But they were sleeping. So I searched hastily for a weapon but could find only a hayfork.

Fearing that I might lose the airman I hurried around by myself to the back of the house and saw the man lying on the ground.

WPA TO INSPECT AIRPORT, DECIDE IMPROVEMENTS

Fund Raising Program To Be Started If Project Gets State Approval.

An important step in a move to obtain improved facilities at Mansfield's municipal airport will be taken Thursday when state WPA officials inspect the port to determine costs of the proposed improvements.

D E Matheny, WPA district director of aeronautics, will make the inspection

Under the program, should WPA officials approve the project, a movement will be started by local organizations to obtain funds with which to pay the city's share of the cost

James R. Harrington, airport manager, announced that the Mansfield chapter of the National Aeronautical association, assisted by service clubs and other organizations in the city will attempt to raise the city's share of the cost of the project. Harrington said that the chapter members had contacted the various organizations and that operations would begin as soon as indication of WPA approval of the project is received.

The association will ask the city to make a WPA application before June 1 if possible. Plans will call for hard-surface runways, an administration building and lighting facilities.

Harrington said that Herbert Howell, designing engineer of the Civil Aeronautics authority, is preparing sketches of the airport program which will be submitted with the WPA application.

Howell's sketches will show a basic plan of improvement which

MEETS AGAIN ON CITY PAY

Council's Finance Committee To Conduct New Study of Wage Tomorrow.

City council's salaries committee will make another attempt to settle the question of a new wage schedule including pay boosts for a number of city workers when it meets tomorrow evening at the Municipal building

C. N. Shultz, secretary of the committee, at council meeting last Wednesday said that the committee had already revamped the schedule several times in order to include all necessary clauses.

The schedule presented to council last week in the form of an ordinance was shelved after Auditor Paul L. Kelley termed it as a move which "might upset the city's civil service system."

Harry Emmons, chairman of the committee, announced today that the committee would discuss necessary change in the schedule to avoid conflict with civil service rules. He said that civil service commissioners, whom Shultz said last week would be consulted, would not attend the meeting

The delay was caused by the discovery by Kelley that the ordin-

Ohioans Jailed After Allegedly Attempting to Pass Spurious $20 Bills Reported Made In Cleveland.

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO—Capt Thomas J Callaghan of the secret service announced today the arrest of one man here and another in Bowling Green, O., on charges of passing counterfeit $20 bills.

He identified the Chicago prisoner as Chester Julius Jablonski, 22, of Cleveland, and the Bowling Green prisoner as Theodore M. Kozar, 24, also of Cleveland

Callaghan said they came here from Cleveland by automobile Sunday night with about $300 in the spurious bills and attempted to pass them here yesterday. He said Jablonski offered one bill in payment for a shirt purchased in a West Madison street store but the clerk recognized the bill as spurious.

Giving an excuse that he had to go out for change, the clerk instead called police who arrested Jablonski, Callaghan said. Kozar fled in the car, he added, but was apprehended at 5 a. m. today in Bowling Green after an eight-state lookout notice had been issued.

Callaghan said Kozar had $260 in bogus bills in his possession He said the bills were made in Cleveland and the government would seek to return both prisoners there

No arrests have been made in the case, and Sheriff M P Luten said "we have virtually no clues to work on."

The first lynching attempt came in the evening when four white men armed with pistols locked officer Dan Davis in a cell at the Gadsden county jail and took Williams with them.

Williams was found shortly after midnight at a Negro residence near here, Sheriff Luten said, "with eight or ten bullet wounds in his body" and badly beaten about the head.

Claim Curb on Roof Drainage Solves 'Floods' In Basements

City officials announced today that more than 25 per cent of the storm water previously carried in the city's sanitary sewer system had been diverted to other channels and that the problem of flooded cellars and basements had been partially solved.

Service-Safety Director C. M Crafton said that although approximately two inches of rain fell last week that he had not received a single complaint on flooded basements. Usually, he said, there were scores following every rainfall.

A roof drainage survey conducted last year showed that approximately 53 acres of roof water was being drained into the sanitary sewer system.

Ray Hines, roof drainage inspector, announced that 25 per cent roof water had been removed from the sewers by corrected drains and that he believed several more residents would correct drainage conditions in their homes within the next month. Hines also warned persons buying homes to check the present roof drainage. He said several new home-owners have had to pay to have new drains installed.

J R Turner, sewage disposal plant superintendent, said that the removal of the storm water had not yet affected the operation of the plant. City officials believe that the excess water impairs the plant's proper operation.

Report No. 3 German Feared Russian Move

LONDON — (AP) — Prime Minister Churchill announced in the house of commons today that a further statement would be made shortly about the surprising flight of Rudolf Hess to Scotland.

BULLETIN

GLASGOW, Scotland—(UP)—Bullet holes in the fabric of the wrecked German fighter plane which carried Rudolf Hess to Great Britain were regarded today as evidence that he was attacked by British planes. Many bullet holes were found in the wreckage of the plane, indicating that British planes attacked Hess and almost robbed Britain of the most sensational prisoner of the war as he was about to parachute to earth.

(By United Press)

LONDON—Rudolf Hess dropped by parachute on a Scottish farm with the words "I have come to save humanity," British quarters reported today in advancing the sensational theory that the No. 3 Nazi split with Adolf Hitler because he believed the fuehrer is leading Germany toward full partnership with Communist Russia.

British quarters reported that Hess' intense hatred of the Communist regime and his belief that Hitler had embarked the third reich along a path of increasing collaboration with Russia well might prove to have motivated the Nazi leader's strange flight to Britain.

Hess, responsible British sources said, appears "to have got religion."

American quarters received information from British sources that the deputy fuehrer's first words on parachuting to earth 10 miles from Glasgow Saturday night were:

"I have come to save humanity."

HALLUCINATIONS: Berlin Still Insists Hess Was Mad

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN—Rudolf Hess "appears to have lived under the hallucination that he was still able to bring about an understanding between Germany and England through personal action with old English acquaintances," a Nazi party communique said today.

"In fact, as already confirmed through a report from London," the communique said, "he bailed out of a plane in Scotland near a place which he wanted to visit and apparently was found there injured

"Rudolf Hess, as for years was known in the party, suffered seriously physically and recently resorted increasingly to various aids, mesmerizers, astrologers and so forth

"In how far these persons also carry the blame for the mental derangement which induced him to take this step is also a point of investigation.

"It, however, also is imaginable that in the last analysis Hess intentionally was lured into a trap by the British.

"The entire manner of his procedure confirms in any case the previously stated fact that he suffered from hallucinations. He knew of numerous 'peace proposals of the fuehrer which came from deep in his heart' better than anyone else.

"Apparently he held the idea that he could forestall through personal sacrifice a development which, to his mind, would end only with complete destruction of the British empire.

"Hess, whose field of duty lay exclusively within the party, has not had any clear conception about the execution or even about the consequences of his action as far as is discernible from his notes."

BLOW: U. S. Sees German Morale Hit By Flight of Hess

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Diplomatic circles seemed agreed today that the melodramatic flight of Rudolf Hess to Britain would be a great blow to the morale of the German people, no matter what explanation they accept.

Both the official German and the British accounts of the war's strangest episode, it was said, contain elements that can hardly be reassuring to the average man in Germany.

These sources reasoned as follows:

The German version speaks of Hess' "failing health for years" and raises doubts as to his sanity, at least at the time he decamped. Inasmuch as Hess continued active in important government and Nazi party affairs almost to the end, the inevitable question arises as to Hess' mental condition for some time past.

In short the German people may well wonder how long important affairs have been in the hands of a man of dubious mental stability.

The British account shows different seeds of doubt. It represents Hess, long one of Hitler's closest associates, as deserting Hitler at the high tide of victory to surrender voluntarily in Great Britain. And it stresses his complete sanity.

Accepted in this light, Hess'

Red-Nazi Coalition Blamed In Dramatic Hess Escape-Flight

British Say He Foresaw Tragic Result Of Hitler Leaning Toward Moscow; Emphasized He Fled for Own Safety From Vengeance.

personal charge of the affair, went to Buckingham palace for an audience with King George VI which was believed to concern Hess.

On the basis of information available to British sources, it was said that Hess appeared to be affected with an almost religious fervor. These quarters said that in his first interviews with British officials he talked in general terms which indicated that the question of German collaboration with Russia might be the chief motive behind his weird behavior.

(There have been indications in dispatches from Europe for some days that Germany and Russia may be moving at this time into a phase of closer cooperation. Rumors have circulated that Hitler and Josef Stalin might confer shortly.)

It was said that Hess showed clearly that he had been under intense nervous strain for many months, a nervous strain that might derive from his belief that Hitler's policy was violating the fundamental Nazi tenet of opposition to communism.

British sources indicated that Hess might believe that, rather than co-operate with hated Russia, Germany should make peace with Britain.

These indications seemed to be borne out, in part at least, by the known fact that Hess' dislike of Russia and communism has for years been notable for its violence.

British sources added that Hess' flight to Britain was made for his own safety and characterized it as tangible evidence that "the core of Germany is rotten."

"Hess believes he was misguided and talks like a man with a guilty conscience," an informed British source commented after the No. 3 Nazi leader, suffering from a broken ankle after his spectacular parachute drop in Scotland, had been questioned at Glasgow and moved secretly to another place as a prisoner of war.

British spokesmen insisted that Hess brought no peace proposals in behalf of dissident Nazis, as had been suggested elsewhere. They indicated that German statements that Hess was under the "delusion" that he might use his former contacts in England to bring about an understanding between the two countries were issued for propaganda purposes to offset the impact of the flight of Adolf Hitler's personal deputy.

On the contrary, the British version intimated that Hess had undergone a change of heart, that he believed Germany was headed for disaster and that he might—although this was mostly rumor and speculation—reveal some of the secrets of Germany in war time or even the plans for future war moves.

Hess was taken first to a Glasgow hospital after landing on the estate of the Duke of Hamilton, with whom he was understood to be acquainted, although the Duke was in no way connected with suggestions that the No. 3 Nazi had flown to Britain to contact backers of a peace movement. It was reported that Hess' acquaintance with the Duke originated in connection with a Mount Everest flying expedition in which both were reported interested.

British spokesmen, however, emphasized the idea that the reason for Hess' flight was his desire to break away from the current Nazi war policy and to escape responsibility for it.

It was emphasized that Hess's whereabouts would be kept secret and nobody outside government officials would be permitted to see him or even communicate with him.

"Hess has definitely not brought peace proposals," an authoritative informant said. "His flight was an escape.

"Hess came in defiance of authority. I suppose he came to Great Britain because he knew that if he had got to a neutral country he would have been in imminent peril of being killed.

"Presumably Hess did it as the result of disagreements with other prominent Nazis, possibly it was a natural revulsion at further unbearable association with others of the Nazi gang."

It was said that Ivone Kirkpatrick, foreign office expert sent to Glasgow to question Hess, had made only a preliminary report. Informents disclosed that physicians had examined Hess thoroughly and were ready to certify him wholly sane.

There were strong intimations that Hess had talked a good deal, even if in generalities, and his information would be of the greatest value to the government.

It was emphasized that there would be no attempt to force Hess to talk and that he would be treated as an honorable prisoner of war.

The amazing parachute landing in Scotland of Hess, the incorruptible, Hitler's shadow for more than 16 years, was certainly held to mean that there was a rift, grave and possibly wide, in the Nazi leadership.

It was believed that Prime Minister Winston Churchill himself might soon clear up the mystery to some extent in a statement either to parliament or to the public direct.

Fully alert to the almost inestimable value of the flight of the second heir to Hitler's dictatorship, the ministry of information began broadcastng the details early this morning, through the officially controlled British Broadcasting company, German and Italian, intending to reach those Germans and Italians who risk prison to listen into "enemy" broadcasts. The broadcasts were continued periodically throughout the day.

Britons, hardly able even yet to grasp in all its implications of the amazing fact that Hitler's deputy fuehrer, the "my good Maurice," whom Hitler trusted above all other high Nazi leaders, waited excitedly for the first hint whether Hess had talked, and what he had said.

That it was a political development of the geratest importance, and the greatest blow that Nazism had suffered since the outbreak of the war, there seemed no doubt.

The Nazis' broad hints that Hess was mentally deranged were accepted as confirmation.

The fact was, according to all evidence, that Hess escaped from Germany as had so many refugees. He had flown direct from the Messerschmidt plane factory at Augsburg, near Munich in southern Germany, to Glasgow in a Messerschmidt 110 fighting plane. He took no ammunition with him and he parachuted when his gasoline had run out.

The government had withheld all information of Hess's landing for two full days. It was not until the German radio had disclosed last night that Hess was missing that the government made it known that Hess had parachuted to safety in Scotland and was a prisoner of war in a Glasgow hospital.

It was assumed that Churchill personally was handling the situation and that it was on his instructions that the foreign office had sent Kirkpatrick to Glasgow to take charge of the questioning of Hess.

Kirkpatrick, a key man in the foreign service, was first secretary of the British embassy at Berlin from 1933, when the Nazis took office, until 1938. He knows Hess well, as he knows Hitler and other Nazi leaders, and he was special interpreter for the late Neville Chamberlain at the Godesberg and Munich conference with Hitler which preceded —and, some say, led up to—the war.

Hess was not only the No. 3 man, second heir to the dictatorship, but he was the man among the high Nazi leaders most trusted by Hitler.

He had served a term in the Landsberg fortress with Hitler, after the Munich beer cellar Putsch of 1923, and it was there he helped Hitler write the Nazi bible, "Mein Kampf," and became his private secretary. Some say Hess did most of the writing. He was made deputy fuehrer after the 1934 purge.

To Hess alone, among high Nazis, Hitler used the intimate German "du" (thou) instead of "you" in addressing him.

The fact was that Britain had in its grasp the one man in the Nazi hierarchy closest to Hitler, the man who knows every secret Hitler has, and the question was whether he would talk.

The morning newspaper Mei Nap, in its obituary, spoke of Hess as the "highest depository of confidence in the fuehrer."

Mei Nap said: "Everybody knew that Hess' sole ambition was to serve the fuehrer."

Tokyo Stunned By Hess Escape Flight

TOKYO—(INS)—Japanese officialdom was frankly stunned and bewildered today by the strange flight to Britain of Deputy Nazi Leader Rudolf Hess.

The semi-official newspaper Asahi and the Tokyo Nichi Nichi made no attempt to disguise their shock and surprise. The diplomatic repercussions felt in Tokyo represented the first reaction to the Hess affair among Nazi Germany's Axis partners.

Attaches of the German embassy likewise were visibly disturbed. All day long there was an indescribable hustle and bustle in and about the swastika-draped structure.

Although obviously distressed, Japanese circles expressed belief that Hess' flight would not connote a serious internal crisis in the Reich so long as victories continue and Adolf Hitler remains "hale and strong."

Saburo Kurusu, former Japanese ambassador to Berlin who last saw Hess when Germany staged a huge festival in honor of Japan's 2600th anniversary, was considerably shaken.

All Japanese newspapers gave wide prominence to stories of Hess' amazing venture.

Thought He Could Bring About Understanding Between Nazis and Britain.

tim to such fateful delusion. This will not interfere with the continuation of the war against England forced upon the German people.

"It will be carried on until—as the fuehrer declared in his last speech—the British rulers are overthrown or ready for peace."

The 47-year-old Hess, Nazi party sources said, was suffering from a long-standing stomach disorder, affliction of the nerves, and consequent sleeplessness, but fundamentally physical, with a resultant disturbance on the mental processes.

These spokesmen said "the incident was extremely tragic to Hess and his family personally, but will not have the slightest influence on German military or foreign political policy."

Personal acquaintances of Hess, whom Hitler designated at the start of the war as second heir to leadership of the reich, said his hallucinations did not involve a persecution complex.

"He was not troubled by any notion the Gestapo or anyone else was pursuing him," a Nazi spokesman said. "Nothing like a purge of the party or government either was feared by Hess," or is in the offing."

Meanwhile, Adolf Hitler himself took over personal direction of the National Socialist party which Hess had led as the fuehrer's deputy. Hitler changed the designation of the office, formerly known as the "office of the deputy of the fuehrer," to the "party chancellery." Martin Bormann, who has been director of that office, remained in charge.

CLUB AT GALION HEARS TALK ON FINGERPRINTING

E. C. Fuller, Mansfield Police Department Expert, Tells of Identification Work.

GALION—That everyone should be fingerprinted, not just criminals, was a point stressed in a talk by E. C. Fuller, superintendent of the department of identification of the Mansfield police department, at the dinner-meeting Monday night of the Galion Rotary club.

In cases of loss of memory, sudden death and serious accident, besides numerous other incidents which might occur in the life of the normal man and woman, fingerprints would aid in identification, the speaker pointed out.

Three processes used in identifying criminals when arrests are made are: Measurements are taken of the criminal, prominent or unusual features about the person are noted, and fingerprints are taken. The prints are sent to local, state, and F. B. I. headquarters.

In Washington, the F. B. I. receives close to 3,000 fingerprints daily, he said. Photographs of the criminal accompany the prints. Fuller also told about the classification of prints and cited cases where identifications were made in crime, loss of memory, and sudden death. Prints of civilians for identification purposes are kept in separate files, he stated.

Announcement was made that the club will participate in the "I Am An American Day" observance next Sunday, and that the club will meet next Tuesday instead of Monday evening in conjunction with the Scout-Parent banquet at the Junior High school.

Dr. O. R. Kackley, president of the club, announced the inter-city meeting to be held tonight at Hotel Harding, Marion.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, MAY 13, 1941.

Enjoy the sunshine while you may, don't let war clouds darken your day.

The Nazis accuse the United States of "prolonging the war"—and they wouldn't know yet that we're merely shortening it.

Ohio's conscientious objectors are being assigned to soil erosion and reforestation projects — in which their only objection may be to work, pay and hours.

Amazing Story of Rudolf Hess

THE most fantastic story that has thus far come out of war-torn Europe is that of Rudolf Hess, close associate of Adolf Hitler in the Nazi regime and indicated as the No. 2 successor to supreme power.

What appears to be the premeditated flight of Hess from Germany is explained by official spokesmen in Berlin as resulting from "a mental disorder," due to failing health, but the London version indicates that Hess knew what he was doing and had what he regarded as good reasons for getting out of Germany.

Whether this episode will develop as the first step toward a rift in the Nazi high command, as it is being interpreted in circles friendly to Great Britain, or is merely an incident in the scheme of Hitler policies, it has become the sensational news of the moment and further disclosures will be awaited with intense interest.

Enforcement Will Reduce Accidents

SOME FOLKS seem rather shocked to learn that 49 traffic accidents occurred in Mansfield during the first ten days of May.

There was no justification for being shocked—or even surprised—the wonder is that there weren't more such "accidents."

Chief of Police Meade K. Bates is quoted as having said that "careless" driving was responsible for the increase in number of accidents.

"Careless driving habits" might more nearly explain the situation in Mansfield—and non-enforcement of traffic rules and regulations may be considered a reasonable explanation of the bad driving habits of entirely too many Mansfield motorists.

Experience in cities which have made a real effort to reduce traffic accidents and deaths has shown that consistent ENFORCEMENT is an essential phase of any safety program.

Except for spasmodic crusades, with police activity extending through a few days or a week, Mansfield has nothing in the way of traffic law enforcement, either as to excessive speed, observing lights and stops signs, cutting corners, driving after dark with one headlight, or with no lights after the specified time for turning them on, and other so-called minor infractions.

It is an accumulation of these minor offenses that leads finally to more serious ones—and resultant collisions, with property damage, injuries and possibly fatalities.

It is the contention of Police Chief Bates that more men are needed in the police department to enforce traffic regulations. Main purpose of revenue from parking meters was understood to be for employment of additional traffic officers and formation of an effective "traffic squad."

An estimate of the probable monthly revenue from parking meters, above the amount required to meet monthly rental payments, would now seem to be sufficiently dependable to move toward at least a semblance of traffic law enforcement—and reduction of collisions caused by "carelessness."

The Passing of Osman C. Hooper

OSMAN C. HOOPER, who died in Columbus yesterday at the age of 83, may have been little known in recent years outside of the capital city and among his wide circle of newspaper friends and associates throughout the state.

But it may be doubted if the influence of any one man in his generation extended further in improving Ohio journalism in the past half century than that of Dr. Hooper.

By his own kindly manner, the thoroughness of his teaching and the high journalistic standards which he set for others, he served not only as a preceptor but also as an exemplar of the finest principles and practices of journalism.

In establishing the Ohio Journalism Hall of Fame, in which two Mansfielders—William S. Cappeller and Frank G. Carpenter—have been accorded recognition, Dr. Hooper perpetuated the memory of a number of early newspaper men and writers in a way that will long serve as an example and a challenge to their successors.

There is a feeling of sadness as death breaks the ties of friendship with Dr. Hooper, yet there is joy in the thought that here was a man who did his work well and who inspired many others to keener appreciation of the responsibilities and opportunities involved in newspaper work.

Higher Wages, Higher Prices

AN ECONOMICS-MINDED columnist notes the remarkable phenomenon of "a general rise in American wages without a corresponding rise in the cost of living." This is most evident in the industrial field, where large groups of workmen are newly unionized, but the process seems to spread.

One part of the statement, though, may be exaggerated. The cost of living, too, is rising. So far the movement comes considerably short of the wage gains, but there is a steady trend in that direction. In order to make the wage gains real, and keep them so, prices must not rise proportionately. In the last war the latter process often defeated the former.

The government has more effective means of price control now, and may be able to prevent the soaring prices that usually come when a lot more money is poured into circulation.

With the migratory population turning to trailers—who knows, maybe one of these transportable homes will be the birthplace of a future president.

Draft Age Reduction Next Move

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — Reduction in the draft, or "selective service" age, is a much belated reform. It is a correction of one of the silliest forms of politically begotten sentimentality of which congress has been guilty for a great many years.

The war department was never responsible. On the contrary it fought hard for a more intelligent system.

Let's look at the problem a moment. When the so-called draft law was enacted it was thought that there was no real danger of the United States becoming involved directly in the war. Even though some shrieked from the housetops that we were bound to get involved the administration was saying the opposite, and most people so believed.

But even those who thought we would get involved—at the time the law was passed and for a good many months thereafter—did not think we would ever need to send any troops to fight. At the worst, it was thought, the participation of the United States would be confined to being an arsenal for Britain and to naval activity.

NOW, if it were assumed, as was thought at the time, that we were preparing for defense against some emergency — an emergency which we frankly did not think was probable, but only possible—obviously the intelligent thing to do would have been to have prepared in such a way that the preparedness would last as long as possible. In short the intelligent thing would be to train boys in their late teens and very early twenties. Surely it was absurd to train men over thirty-five for an emergency which might not develop for years!

But individual members of congress, themselves for the most part getting along in years, were positively panicky over the thought that they might be attacked for drafting boys, but worded the law so as to preclude any possibility that they themselves might have to serve.

It may be that politically they were wise. Certainly it must be admitted that congressmen are by way of being experts at determining what is likely to beat them, and what is not. That is their vocation and their avocation.

But from a strictly military standpoint it was certainly silly for the United States treasury to pay out good money to train men who would probably be too old to be good soldiers—we are not talking about generals now, but men to shoot rifles, machine guns and cannon, to run tanks and fly airplanes.

ALL of the wars in history have been fought by boys, and they probably always will be. It is easier to train boys, whether it be for the fast changing technique of war, or for golf, or any other game of skill. There is lots of truth in the old saying that it is hard to teach an old dog new tricks.

All this the army knew, and struggled against the politically-minded determination of congress to put the ages of the men to be called to military service way up, but to no avail.

Congressmen invented all sorts of excuses for doing what they thought was the politically expedient thing. For example one important leader in the house said the idea was to spread the age limits wide, in order that a number would be included so tremendous as to scare Europe to death! He added that NOT to include the young would show Europe that we would have a tremendous reserve on which to draw should hostilities be prolonged!

One doubts if anything of the sort would fool Hitler very much!

Listen World!

Wishful Thinkers

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

DO YOU FACE FACTS AS THEY ARE . . . OR TWIST THEM INTO WHAT YOU'D LIKE THEM TO BE?

There's a question that will hit every human right where he lives in this dark year of 1941. And if you don't think that kind of mental shenanigan can raise Cain with a nation, read your current history.

England didn't get into her Norwegian mess for lack of ships. France wasn't taken for lack of guns. They were both trapped by something within their own spirits . . . by a refusal to see conditions as they really were—by "wishful thinking."

William Henry Chamberlain has written a shrewd, hard-hitting article on this subject for the May issue of Harpers—"The Malady of Wishful Thinking." And if ever a people needed to read it, we do today. For, with all our smartness, we Americans are the most confident, exuberant and complacent wishful thinkers the world has ever seen. In spite of our vast defense preparations, the vast majority of us don't really fear war. We've never been licked and we don't believe we can be. How about all this frightful news? Well, it's plenty depressing. And we're certainly sorry for those who've gone down under Mr. Hitler's mechanized heel.

But it can't happen to us! We're different! We wouldn't lie down and take it! We'd outsmart those Heinies! No, siree; nobody's going to get the best of America!

So we kid ourselves along, just as Belgium and Holland and all the rest kidded themselves, refusing to face reality, twisting facts to suit desire and convenience until it was too late. Ruthlessly, Mr. Chamberlain drives the picture home, showing how well our own attitude fits the same pattern.

"People want to hear and read what they would like to believe," he says. "To tell an unpopular truth to a large audience may be commercially and socially almost impossible. Mass wishful thinking does a vast amount of harm, if only because those who indulge in it are not cushioned against the impact of hard, unpleasant developments when they occur . . .

"In normal times wishful thinking is just a sloppy habit that does much the same kind of harm to the victim that he would experience from an educational system that made everything easy by neglecting essential facts and disciplines. But in a period of great crisis and swift change, wishful thinking becomes one of the most dangerous diseases from which a democracy can suffer . . . There is no place for this malady in the world's present iron age, an age that makes a supreme demand for hard, pitiless, unemotional examination and recognition of ascertainable facts as they are."

What has this to do with YOU? Plenty. A man—any man—has as many enemies as any nation, and will as surely ravel out if he doesn't face them realistically. He doesn't need to live in a lather of fear, but he does have to face the truth—or else! You, f'rinstance. There are several things in your own life which are menacing your strength and happiness and weakening your wallop. But what are you doing about them Telling yourself fairy tales? Waiting for "something to turn up" that will solve the problem? Saying "things aren't really as bad as they seem"?

Nice parlor game, if you can get by with it, stranger.

But don't start whining if Old Man Reality pops up some day and knocks your ears down!

Lesson From Dust Bowl.

The best way to cure a worry is to correct the disquieting condition. The dust bowl for several years was a major concern in this country. That was before there were war troubles. Now the dust bowl is less of an economic threat and the Okies are less buffeted about by the sand laden winds. There are figures to prove this.

There has been a change in farming in 12 western states, the Census Bureau reveals. This area is putting the plains and prairies back into grass. In these states harvested croplands decreased from 200,988,590 acres in 1930 to 165,626,674 acres in 1940. In those states the number of sheep increased more than 3¼ million in the decade and cattle more than 1½ million. Great stretches of marginal lands have been returned to productive value through grazing and the losses through dust storms have been reduced.—Toledo Blade.

Extra Demand On Electric Power For Defense May Cause Shortage

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Last year's miscalculations by defense chiefs on aluminum requirements, which led to the current grave shortage, apparently have been repeated in the equally vital field of electric power.

Despite all the New Deal power projects at Bonneville, TVA, and Grand Coulee, a confidential report just received by the OPM Production Planning Board predicts an 800,000-kilowatt power shortage by 1942. Such a deficiency could seriously retard defense output.

The report, compiled by several prominent OPM experts, estimates that when defense production reaches a peak next year, the nation's power needs will increase by at least 1,400,000 kilowatts. This will be partially met by 600,000 kilowatts which can be produced by existing power plant reserves. But that still leaves a shortage of 800,000 kilowatts.

According to the secret report, here is how the miscalculation came about:

The utilities informed the Federal Power Commission that the country's power capacity would reach 24,239,979 kilowatts by the end of 1940, increase to 30,757,437 this year, and to 33,205,263 in 1942. These figures are correct. But defense needs were grossly underestimated.

For example: in December, 1940, power consumption exceeded by 22 per cent the estimate for the month that the utilities had given the FPC in September. Their figure was 25,143,702 kilowatts; actual consumption was 27,752,856.

Already Short.

ALREADY there is a serious power shortage in the key defense area of Buffalo, according to the report.

Another shortage will be in Tennessee, where requirements by the end of this year are put at 180,000 kilowatts above what is now available. Others are predicted in Georgia, Alabama, the crucial Pittsburgh area, Arkansas, Louisiana, northern Colorado and Oregon. Adding to these difficulties is the serious drought, which is paring hydroelectric resources.

The problem obviously calls for drastic action. One immediate measure under consideration is to put the entire country on daylight saving time. To conserve electric power, both the British and Germans have moved up the clock two hours, but large sections of the U. S. A. still are on normal time.

Note — A powerful utility and railroad lobby is exerting tremendous pressure on Capitol Hill to kill the president's plan for a giant power project on the St. Lawrence river.

Inside Stuff.

ONE inside reason why Emil Schram left the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to head the New York Stock Exchange was that Jesse Jones has insisted on passing upon every penny spent by the RFC, even though Jesse long ago was supposed to have graduated to other things. Schram resented Jesse's constant intrusion, hinted that he was no babe-in-arms, finally got out. . . . New Hampshire's two Republican senators, pro-British Bridges and anti-British Tobey, are anything but pals. Bridges thinks Tobey's isolationist stand will mean Tobey's political death. . . . Mayor LaGuardia declined with thanks FDR's request that he head the new Civil Defense Commission, indicating to the Boss that he wants a cabinet job or nothing. . . . Roosevelt needs a man for Civil Defense who will make more of it than merely parading old men on drill grounds. He wants to clean scrap iron from city dumps, and put across various civic reforms. . . . On May 17 William J. Donaldson, jr., popular superintendent of the house press gallery, will celebrate his 30th year with the press gallery, in which he started as a messenger. Donaldson has attended every national political convention since 1912.

Argentine Minister.

MORE significant than most people realize is the arrival in Washington of distinguished Dr. Enrique Ruiz Guinazu, first Argentine foreign minister in history to visit the U. S. A.

Guinazu is the third recent Argentine foreign minister to be appointed while serving at Rome or the Vatican. However, his predecessors, instead of visiting the United States en route home, stopped off at Paris or London. The United States was given a wide berth.

In the last year, however, two things have happened. (1) The United States has become the transportation hub of the western hemisphere. It is now much easier to travel from Europe to Argentina via New York.

(2) The United States is now the political, financial and trade center for the entire western hemisphere. One hundred and one problems affecting Argentina have to be settled in the United States.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Melvin Spitalnick carried a camera in his hip pocket. . . . He's a Postal Telegraph messenger . . . He's 18 years old . . . Sometimes his mother questions the wisdom of his carrying a camera, for films cost money . . . They cost a lot of money . . . Messenger boys do not make extraordinary large salaries.

But Spitalnick likes cameras. . . . He likes pictures, news pictures especially. . . . Wherever he goes, his camera goes . . . Some day, he told himself, I'll need this camera . . . And when that time comes, Ill have it.

For young Melvin Spitalnick, age 18, of 1st avenue, New York, that moment came the other day. . . . He was crossing the street at Madison avenue and 57th . . . So was Fritz Kreisler, the world's greatest violinist. A light delivery truck flashed around the corner, and, apparently without seeing it, Fritz Kreisler walked into it.

There was, suddenly, a hue and cry peculiar to busy city street corners when there has been an accident . . . Women screamed. . . . You could hear the grinding of brakes a block away.

It was a moment in a lifetime for Melvin Spitalnick, the telegraph messenger who carried a camera . . . He had his camera out then, and he used it. He got pictures . . . He got pictures of Fritz Kreisler, the world's greatest violinist, inert and unconscious on the city's streets.

THAT night Melvin Spitalnick sold his pictures to the Associated Press. The Associated Press wirephoto distributed the pictures to member newspapers throughout the land . . . It meant more money to Spitalnick than he earns in a long time.

When he first took the pictures he had no idea that the victim of the accident was a world famous artist . . . He phoned in and said, "Do you want to see pictures of an injured man?"

They told him, yes, and he brought in the pictures . . . Then he told his story of how he always carried his camera, even though at times his mother suggested that cameras and film are expensive luxuries for messenger boys . . . "But I got it," he said. "I got it. I was right there and I got it."

Then he said, "There's just one thing I'd like to ask. I wonder if you'll use my name with the picture. You see, my mother thinks cameras are a luxury, and if you'd use my name with the picture I could sort of prove to her that, for me anyway, it is really worthwhile."

THEY said, sure, Mr. Spitalnick, we'll use your name. Then a bystander said, "You're lucky . . . You've got the touch . . . Here, pick out a horse for me to play."

"I don't know anything about horses," the boy said.

"You don't have to know anything about horses . . . you're lucky . . . Just pick one out for me."

He was handed a racing sheet. "Okay," he said, and ran his hand down the list . . . Here's a horse."

Its name was Market Wise.

It was running in the Wood.

That night, Market Wise paid $18 to $2.

LIFE'S LIKE THAT

CREDIT for introducing steamboats on western waters is due Nicholas J. Roosevelt and Robert Fulton of New York.

The two men became associated in the invention and building of steamboats in 1809. Fulton had, on Aug. 17, 1807, successfully operated the Clermont on a memorable voyage up the Hudson from New York City to Albany and return in 62 hours. The two men built the steamboat New Orleans at Pittsburgh in 1811.

In this boat Roosevelt descended the Ohio and Mississippi rivers to New Orleans in 14 days. Verticle paddle wheels were used for the first time and Roosevelt was granted a license for this invention on Dec. 1, 1814.

The New Orleans successfully made the return trip and soon thereafter regular steamboat lines were established on the Ohio.

A Farmer's Diary

Corn Planting

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

NEW oak leaves are as big as squirrels' ears.

Farmers in our neighborhood are planting corn. Before seven I saw four teams in the field already. Bags of fertilizer were distributed along the grassy edge of each enclosure. The sun was more than an hour high above the eastern rim of the valley.

It rained last night and now the smooth cultivated soil is moist and dark. Gauzy clouds of fog rose slowly near the surface. Gray, delicate spider webs, burdened with dew, were visible.

I watched my neighbor start with his two-row planter. The clean, uniform yellow grains of hybrid corn rattled in the metal hopper just above the shoes that scored the rows. Two large measures of fertilizer were poured into the sheet iron drums standing above and just in front of each wheel. Meanwhile, the team of dark heavy bays stamped about, impatient to be off.

My friend took the lines in hand and quickly got up on the none too springy seat, adjusting the lever to the depth desired. I stood facing east and watched the outfit move toward the rising sun. The surface soil was moist but the planter shoes turned up two straight narrow lines of light gray dirt that seemed to run together at the distant end.

I remembered, standing there, how my father used to score a field both ways with a horse and single shovel plow. Wherever the furrows crossed at right angles, my brothers and I were to drop three grains of corn. Commercial fertilizer was rarely used, which made planting simpler. We covered the grain with hoes.

Later on, a two winged coverer was invented, which was drawn by a horse. This pulled the soil from the sides of each row and placed it in the center.

Following this, a heavy one-row machine which used both seed and fertilizer was considered a great invention. It was so cumbersome that a horse could work only a half day with it, and another fresh unwearied animal would be needed in the afternoon.

Among the hills and limestone slopes we raised our crop and harvested the golden ears in autumn. The yield was not so bountiful, but our wants were simpler. Each family lived well on far less income than could be possible today.

That's what YOU think!

Learn the truth! Nowadays it is easy for you —or anybody, anywhere—to "catch" roundworms And these ugly creatures can cause great distress inside you, without your even knowing what is wrong.

Use Jayne's Vermifuge to drive out roundworms before they can "get set" and make trouble. Jayne's is America's best known proprietary worm medicine: used by millions for over a century.

CHAPTER XVII

Raye sank to the ground and snatched off her little black hat. Soft golden curls framed her piquant face. She sank gratefully back against the big trunk of an old pine, wound her arms around her bent-up knees and felt more nearly relaxed than she had in many long weeks.

"If you think this is peaceful, I'm glad. About time you had a little change," declared Bill. "You must have had plenty of worries."

He took a small white cloth out of the hamper and spread it on the ground.

"My landlady's a grand cook. I ordered my special — pineapple upside-down cake. She said it would be soggy before we could ever get to it—but I told her to do her darndest — I'd take the consequences. I told her this feast was for the queen of hearts. How's that?"

"Sounds awfully romantic."

"As childish, I suppose, as nursery rhymes. But I'm like that—a kind of nut."

"No, really?" laughed Raye, close to happy.

She wondered what had come over her. She was so breathless, she wanted to cry, with nothing actually to cry about—that is, for the moment in this lovely setting with the soft wind fanning her now burning cheeks. This man—he was nothing to her! She didn't want him to be! All the secrecy about his recent trip! Why didn't he tell her something about it? She must stop being so—so susceptible.

"Yes—realize I don't matter to you, Raye. But I—I . . ."

He did not finish and she was provoked at herself for being disappointed.

He began to unpack the hamper. Food neatly and temptingly packed in waxed paper began appearing on the tablecloth. Sandwiches, cake, pickles and olives; small paper cups of potato salad, some filled with jelly; paper plates, paper napkins and wooden spoons.

He ran back to the car for a carton of soft drinks and set it to anchor a corner of the cloth that the breeze insisted upon rumpling.

"I took these bottles out of the ice-box the last minute before starting—so perhaps they're not too warm."

"You were sure I'd accept your invitation, weren't you?" she said, watching with a certain degree of satisfaction the deep flush that crept into his long lean cheeks.

"No—not exactly. I intended to be prepared—in case you were in one of your — your generous moods, that's all."

"I'm glad I was," she said, slightly ashamed. "And you had to close your station—lose an afternoon's business . . ."

"Oh no. I hired a fellow to run the place until evening. He's pretty reliable—he took care of things while I was away."

That shadow crossed his face again. Every time he spoke of his trip she noticed it.

She looked down at her legs, saw a run, and scowled. She moistened a finger with her tongue and gently patted the blond silk. A run in her hose these days was nearly a calamity. Somehow, buying hose by the single pair instead of in dozen lots made them seem dearer. The old Raye Stone had shagged hose and laughed; the new Raye could see nothing funny about it.

Raye made herself smile again.

"What a grand-looking lunch! I'm so glad I'm here!"

"With me, Raye?"

She attempted a gay laugh but it sounded forced. "Yes, with you. I willingly admit it."

"Fine and dandy. I knew we'd hit it off, sooner or later."

She took the sandwich he offered now, quickly peeled off its wrapping and bit into delicious ham depths. The expression in his nice hazel eyes sent an eager anticipation tumbling through her, making her wish again that she could completely clear him of suspicion in her own mind.

If she could only make him talk, tell her something that would straighten matters out!

She finally said, "You left town so—so suddenly, I was nearly shocked. But of course—business affairs often make sudden trips necessary."

He took a deliberate drink from the bottle he was holding. She noticed how his hand shook.

"If it only had been business that made that trip necessary—I'd be thankful. It wasn't, however, as simple as all that," came from him a little savagely.

She sat up tautly and tried not to show her concern. She took quick appraisal of his drawn face but it told her nothing.

She slowly gathered up a handful of pebbles and tossed them aimlessly into the calm lake, waiting for him to continue.

When he didn't, she suggested timidly, "Would it help—if you talked things over—with me?"

"Good grief, no!" he answered so violently it startled her. "You're not very keen about me as it is, Raye. Why should I tell you things that might — might send me farther out of reach?"

"If it's something you're — worried about — just to tell me might ease your — your mind," she persisted gently.

In his eyes was a sort of dazed look—of shame—she could not interpret.

It's so—so unpleasant—I can't even mention it to you," he said, his square jaw settling into firm lines.

She took a hasty tremulous breath and tried to dislike him again. But even now, she found it next to impossible. It was preposterous! Why, he'd nearly confirmed every suspicion she'd had about him!

"It's a beautiful feeling I have for you," he told her now, abruptly. His voice deepened. "I love you, Raye."

She glanced up at his tanned face, at his touseled, tow-colored hair and the broad-shouldered strength of him sitting across from her in his blue slacks and shirt.

She was stirred to the depths and might have blurted out a great deal to him then; but instead, she gave a sharp scream. The reconnoitering bumblebee on her hand had changed everything. Her impulsive confesion of interest in Bill Anderson died on her lips nearly as soon as it was born.

Bill was instantly on his feet scaring off the bee before it could use its stinger, although the insect must have carried a cupid's dart that perfectly found its mark. Bill's arms went around Raye as he knelt beside her.

Something dearly compelling enveloped her now and she offered no protest.

Gently, he pulled back her head and cradled it against his shoulder. "Oh, my dear, my dear," he murmured huskily.

Then he checked himself, like a man who feared he had gone too far.

But his arms tightened hungrily about her, and she felt his heart speaking when his lips momentarily met hers.

He released her so abruptly that she winced.

"You're the type of girl a man would work his fingers to the bone for—which probably doesn't make sense to you," he said, a ragged pitch of desperation in his voice.

He stood tall and erect before her now.

"You should have rubies, diamonds, pearls—live in a world of money," came from him a little bitterly. "I've little enough of that, Raye—so I'm not offering myself to you. You need a bigger, better break than a fellow like me.

"When I first met you, I knew you were the one," he continued rapidly. "I didn't stop to think of your background—I just started right in making plans—for you. Nothing else in the world seemed to matter. Then, finally, I realized the difference between us. With your money, the situation was all wrong—but without it, things didn't look any better. I realized I'd nothing to offer—absolutely nothing."

She lifted her head, her eyes shining with a new wonder. His kiss had filled her with a tempest deaf to reason.

As if he could not help himself, he leaned down and cupped her lovely face tenderly in his two hands.

He held it silently, in his eyes such a longing as she had never before seen on any man's face. There was despair in it, too.

Then just as quickly as his hands had touched her, they fell away and she wondered how to make him understand that she needed none of those precious jewels he had mentioned—that she needed only love. Even the suspicion she had of him now melted easily into nothingness. In fact, she entirely forgot it.

RECOVERY PRAISED

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal. —(U.P.) —A physician at Alta Bates hospital congratulated Mrs. Adelia Le Protti on the rapidity of her recovery from the effects of a broken leg. Fifteen minutes later she died. Death apparently was due to a blood clot carried to the heart.

WARNS FARMERS ON EXCESSIVE WOOD-CUTTING FOR HIGH PRICES

Clearing woodlots and selling lumber may bring Richland county farmers cash now, but it will cost them money in the long run, according to J. A. Merrill, forester at the Rocky Fork CCC camp.

The present tendency to overcut and oversell lumber is a menace to the national program, Merrill said.

"Too many farmers are overanxious to cash in while prices are high, even though by cutting their trees they eliminate all possible returns for many years to come," he said. "Lump sum selling, followed by slash or clear cutting, frequently leaves the owner not only with little or no growing stock on the ground, but often brings him a low price for the material cut. Slash cutting also leaves the ground susceptible to soil erosion."

Merrill recommended a three-point program, including protection for woodlands from grazing, protection from fire, and selection cutting of trees.

Volume, quality and good prices can be obtained only from logs, he pointed out, so it is a waste to cut small, immature trees which may be valuable later.

Merrill urged county farmers to do their own logging on a systematic basis, saving the smaller trees for future use and to protect the soil from erosion during heavy rains.

THEATERS

Calling Dr. Kildare.

A motor crash, an emergency roadside operation and a great court climax are among the thrills of "The People vs. Dr. Kildare," opening Wednesday at the Ohio. The popular duo of all the Kildare pictures, Lionel Barrymore and Lew Ayres, are a greater combination than ever and Barrymore gives a plea in the court room scene reminiscent of his speech in "A Free Soul." Bonita Granville plays an ice follies star and the cast has Laraine Day and others.

Lusty Sea Tale.

"The Long Voyage Home," lusty sea tale of stout-hearted men beginning Wednesday at the Madison, has most of its action laid on a British tramp steamer en route to England after a long voyage with calls in the Caribbean. It features a motley array of personalities, among them, a British-er of superior breeding who is trying to drown his memories in drink. John Wayne, Thomas Mitchell and Ian Hunter head the cast. "Las Vegas Nights," the second attraction is given "sock" by Tommy Dorsey and Bert Wheeler.

New Comedy Team.

Buying a magazine is one way for a would-be author to get stories published, but it proves an expensive experiment for John Shelton, a newcomer, in "Blonde Inspiration," opening Wednesday at the Ritz. Not only does he become part owner of the magazine but he discovers it is his job to write all the stories. Virginia Grey another newscomer, is teamed with Shelton. The cast includes such players as Reginald Owen, Donald Meek, Albert Dekker and Charles Butterworth. "Leopard Men of Africa," is the second attraction.

Melody Featured.

The Bumsteads prove masters of melody as well as mirth in "Blondie Goes Latin," showing at the Park. Penny Singleton and Arthur Lake, the "Blondie" and "Dagwood" of the films, were both on the musical comedy stage and in vaudeville before entering pictures. Naturally they are right at home in musical roles. Tito Guizar and Ruth Terry add to the musical embellishments of the film. John Wayne and Frances Dee in "A Man Betrayed" is the second feature.

Stockholm was founded in 1255 but did not become the capital of Sweden until modern times.

Missing Plane Found In 'Graveyard'

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Miss Midnight's Diary.

(Glimpses of the Town at Night)

DEAR DIARY: William Powell is probably still pondering over this situation, which was created by one of his own mild pranks. The other night Bill called Le Cafe Arnold and asked for a reservation in the name of "Mr. and Mrs. Nick Charles" (the Thin Man characters, of course.) He arrived alone, and told the headwaiter that Mrs. Powell (Diane Lewis) would join him shortly.

Dorothy Kilgallen

A few moments later the headwaiter approached Powell and said, "Mr Powell Mrs Charles is here with her husband" Powell did a double-take and the headwaiter led Myrna Loy and Arthur Hornblow to the table.

Then Mrs. Powell arrived and they dined as a foursome.

At this point a rather confusing conversation ensued between the headwaiter and a captain The headwaiter commented, "That's a funny table there. It's the first time I've ever seen three married couples sitting at a table for four people"

The captain asked, "What do you mean? There are only two couples at that table"

"You're wrong" the headwaiter said. "There are four people, but three couples. The reservation was made for Mr and Mrs Charles— that's Mr. Powell and Miss Loy. They're there Then there is also Mr. and Mrs. William Powell, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hornblow. Three couples — but only four people

Tuesday Barbara Bennett lunched at the Stork club with her husband, Morton Downey, and there was much neck-craning from the other tables and considerable chatter about whether or not this meant a reconciliation. But it wasn't, it was merely a confab to settle the unhappy details.

Barbara looked chic in a black crepe skirt with a light pink bodice, and a brimmed black straw hat that floated a black veil As if to solve the gossips' problems about the state of her affections, she turned up again at the Stork club for cocktails—this time with Addison Randall, the cowboy actor, whom she is expected to marry when and if she and Morton are divorced.

Peggy Hopkins Joyce has got all of her diamonds out again. After appearing in public rather conservatively jeweled for some months, Peg strolled into Monte Carlo weighted down with the following: a large sapphire pin, diamond and ruby rings, diamond ruby bracelets, and a diamond ring as big as first base at Ebbet's Field.

Bruce Cabot was dancing with Phyllis Brooks—Phyllis looking thinner, Bruce looking plumper.

Margot Grahame was taking the audience's mind off the strip-tease act with her divine white pique and lace evening dress which was made in a fashion that can only be described as peek-a-boo The combination of Margot's red hair, white suede skin, and the peek-a-boo is enough to make any floor show superfluous, to say the least.

This paragraph is intended to be something of a tribute to a new starlet and a curtain for her first act The girl is Carol Bruce who said goodbye to New York last week

Before "Louisiana Purchase" opened few people had heard of Carol Bruce Now she is stage and screen property to be valued with plenty of dollar signs and no Broadway star received more publicity in this past year than she The way all this affected Carol's personality can be answered by what she did on her last night in town

She wanted to go to two places. The Ruban Bleu and Spivvy's

Well after the show she did go to the Ruban Bleu and rock to the irresistible rhythms of the great Mildred Bailey Then she went to Spivvy's.

True, Carol wanted to hear Spivvy—but more than that she wanted to sing farewell to New York

And sing she did, for half hour, and better than she ever sang before. Because she was singing hosannahs to the power that made it possible to rise above the crowd, she was singing thanks to the turn of events Fortune had allowed her, she was singing her appreciation of the town that made her a star.

It was a farewell you could expect of a nice girl, a humble girl like Carol Bruce Broadway can be proud of this neat package it has sent to Hollywood.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — Soldiering somewhere in Africa is a Hollywood writer who doesn't know he's a Hollywood writer.

Geoffrey Household, over military age but having an idea what was coming, had gone back to London with his wife months before the war broke out

ROBBIN COONS

He was in the service, a volunteer, at the outbreak and he is now in the thick. He was gone before the movies bought his novel "Rogue Male," and so far his wife has not been able to communicate the news

She is here now. She came, at his insistence, in one of those overcrowded refugee boats which left England in the frenzied days preceding the invasion of Poland The news of the declaration came at sea. Originally she had a ticket on the Athenia, but changed her sailing date.

She is a charming, womanly woman, and you can imagine what these past weeks have meant to her She had not heard from her husband the past five months, she did not know that her letters had gone through But she wanted to skip "all that." She has a job to do here.

"Rogue Male" (being filmed as "Man Hunt") is his second published novel. Household, intrigued by the idea of a hunter and the "most guarded" thing in the world today — the dictator, specifically Hitler—wrote it in London shortly before the war

Geoffrey Household, wherever he is, should know that his most ardent admirer is hard at work for him. I feel, in fact, as if I know the man myself, just from hearing her talk: this adventurer with ideals, this scholar, this restless observer of life and scheming dreamer for a better world

Britain Hasn't Shipping Space For Baseballs

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Heavy shipment of war materials is preventing the estimated 80,000 U. S. sandlot baseball clubs from sending their "aid" to the British, it developed today.

Ray Dumont, of Wichita, Kan., president of the national semi-pro baseball congress sent a personal letter to King George, offering to sponsor a drive for 40,000 bats and 40,000 balls for shipment to England, which boasted 600 clubs before outbreak of war.

The king, through the British embassy in Washington, thanked the organization for the offer but was unable to accept because of the lack of shipping space.

LONG-DELAYED STREET REPAIR JOBS STARTED

Bowman Street Closed While Workmen Repave Surface of Touby's Run Bridge.

The long-promised and much-delayed program of improving and patching city streets got under way yesterday. Workers from the Mansfield Asphalt Paving company closed Bowman street between the Baltimore and Ohio and Erie railroads and began repaving that section of the street and the bridge surface over Touby's run

In various parts of the city, street workers directed by C H Hebel, street superintendent, went ahead with asphalt patches for the streets hardest hit by winter weather. Hebel and Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton said that the worst ruts would be repaired within the next two weeks

Crafton announced today that the city would push a drive to return the streets into proper condition as soon as possible. Constant delay in the delivery of materials and inclement weather have been the two main obstructions, according to the director.

Carl H Stander, president of the Mansfield Asphalt Paving company, said that his workers had begun taking up the old pavement on Bowman street and that a concrete base for asphalt should be laid by the end of the week. Stander said that the street should be re-opened early next week.

In addition to paving the street and the bridge surface over the creek, company workers will widen the street four feet, making it 34 feet in width.

Stander said that the grading workers would go from the Bowman street project to Dorian street where asphalt pavement will be laid over the water line being constructed from the Park avenue east subway to Wayne street The company also has a contract for the improvement of Rhein avenue from Sturges avenue to Wood street

Hebel said that his workers were patching streets torn up for water line projects. Alsphalt will be spread at Weldon avenue intersections at First, Second and Third streets and also at Blanche street and Lexington avenue and Mulberry and Mendota streets.

SENATE READY TO QUIT WORK

Votes to Adjourn Wednesday, House Won't Finish Up Before Thursday.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—The Ohio senate wants to close up shop tomorrow, but the house of representatives is not certain that it can complete its work by then.

Without a suspension of the rules to permit a vote on the unemployment insurance and mining safety bills, the house can not get through before Thursday

Ninety-two votes are required to suspend the rules and take up the two major measures out of order, and help of the Democratic members would be needed for this Whether they would co-operate was problematical.

The senate voted last night to quit work May 14 and adjourn sine die May 27 Assent of the house is necessary

The house judiciary committee meanwhile recommended for passage the unemployment insurance bill, which has been approved by the senate, and prospects of a fight on the house floor diminished when organized labor said it would go along

The mine safety bill, however is still tied up in the judiciary committee, although some members said a compromise suitable to both employers and labor would be reported out probably late today This measure too, has been passed by the senate.

Meanwhile, the senate-house conference committee is still negotiating on the $352,800 000 biennial appropriation bill Republican leaders said its report would be brought up for action when the two houses dispose of other important matters

'There are too many good intentions and there is not enough sound thinking at the present time," Johnson said as he spoke on the subject, "What Standards Shall We Choose?"

Pointing out that the American way meant political, economic and religious freedom, Johnson said that in the present rapidly changing scene of events it was necessary to take stock of the old ways before exchanging them for new ones which might easily result in the loss of things essential to the American way of life

"To maintain the American standards we must develop a spirit of inquiry which we have lost," he said, "And refuse to accept too much 'protection' by the government in the conduct of free enterprise" he asserted.

"Protection saps the strength which is essential for the continuance of the American way," he said.

Edwin C Geiger retiring president, presided at the meeting.

BODIES ARE DISCOVERED IN WRECKAGE

Charred Craft Reported Atop Pennsylvania Mountain By Airline Pilot.

(By International News Service)

LEWISTOWN, Pa. — The "graveyard of aviation" claimed two additional victims today as the identity of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Brewster, New York socialites, missing since Friday on a pleasure flight, was established beyond any doubt in their wrecked airplane atop a central Pennsylvania mountain.

Whitney Stone, brother-in-law of Brewster, who rushed to the scene of the crash from Dubois, accompanied scouting parties up the rugged paths of Shade mountain, 25 miles northeast of Lewistown, to identify the missing broker and his wife

"There is no doubt about the identity of the bodies," he said.

The charred wreckage of the airplane was first sighted late yesterday afternoon by Norman Rentoul, an All-American Airplines pilot, who radioed his report to the Harrisburg airport. Capt. William A. Moore, superintendent of the Harrisburg flying field, said he flew over the scene at a height of about 50 feet.

"The plane evidently flew into the top of a mountain wide open and slid along the ground for about 100 feet It apparently burst into flames when it struck," he said

Pennsylvania motor police said the plane had struck the summit of Shade mountain in Snyder county, plowing up more than 100 feet of earth and snapping off trees before bursting into flames.

The 33-year-old airman and his wife the former Leonie DeBarry Lyon whom he married two years ago, took off from Roosevelt Field, N Y., Friday, for Warren, Ohio

When hours passed and the prominent New York social figures failed to arrive, searching parties were organized and central Pennsylvania, long termed the "graveyard of aviation" by flying men, was combed from the air.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

Intuition rang a little warning bell within me at Nancy Carew's appearance. Her attitude was so resolute, her eyes so mandatory as she came up to us that I found myself asking worriedly what had happened so to concern her.

She did not delay her approach to whatever she wanted, speaking to Mary even before she reached us.

"Mary, dear, will you permit me to speak to your auntie alone for perhaps a half minute? I promise solemnly I won't keep her a second longer than that."

To my surprise, Mary's eyes were suddenly stormy, but her training held.

"Why, of course, Miss Carew," she said, and forthwith walked down the corridor away from us.

"Dear, deluded child!" the old actress whispered, looking after her with genuine affection in her still beautiful eyes. Then she moved close to me and muted her voice to a whisper.

Her Message Urgent.

"I must see you and talk to you about Mary, before you go away again. I have thought of writing you, but dislike to put anything on paper. And I kept thinking you must come into the city soon. I have a room in the hotel here—Philip has been most kind and generous to me—and I can come to you or you can come to me whenever you can make an opportunity after the party. But I must talk to you. I have that to say which cannot be put off much longer."

"Of course I will see you," I told her, yielding to her insistence. I knew her sterling worth and her infinite tact and consideration well enough to be sure she would not have asked the interview were she not actuated by some compelling motive. "But you may have to wait hours before I can arrange it."

Meeting Is Arranged.

"That does not matter in the least," she assured me quickly.

"I do not know how long this interview with Mary is going to last," I told her. "After that Mary and the Veritzens insist that I must come back to the party for a little while—"

"Oh! but of course," she interposed with flattering quickness. "We are all so anxious to see you."

"After that Olga has asked me to see her alone."

She gave a little start.

"Ah!" she breathed. "I wouldn't be afraid to wager that we're both barking up the same tree."

"When Olga leaves, I shall be very glad to see you," I said. "And I think it would be better if you came to my suite. I do not want Mary to know that we are talking, and I can hide you if she comes to me, while she would suspect something if she came to my room and found me missing."

"I see your point," she said. "Now, how will I know when you are ready for me?"

"I shall telephone your room," I said. "Please be ready to come over as soon as I telephone."

"I shall be right there," she said. "Now just one more thing, although I've already run over the half minute I promised Mary."

"You mean I have," I told her, smiling. "But I had to explain things to you. Now, what is your one thing?"

"It is just this," she said hesitatingly. "Would you mind conveying to Mary the idea that I have asked you something about altering my part? She will think unutterable things of me, but I can't help that. She must not know the real reason why I want to see you."

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, May 14.

Although there may be splendid opportunities for the achievement of some form of public good, perhaps with transportation, communications, writings or speech-making, yet there are several angles for defeat, opposition or crafty undermining from superiors, elders friends as well as inimical interests. This may be provoked by impetuous words or acts, inspired by a sarcastic or caustic frame of mind. Such unhappy attitude may enter the domestic or social relations to the detriment of fond hopes and wishes.

Those whose birthday it is may be on the brink of a year of excellent opportunity for growth, expansion, success and happiness even though there are signs of enmity and antagonism coming from employers, superiors, elders, even friends and relatives. Benefits come from decisive self-control in speech, acts and writings, and not from impetuosity and bitterness And the accent for progress is placed on public relations, group and community welfare.

A child born on this day should have splendid abilities with much versatility and energy, but may provoke opposition because of its caustic tongue or impetuous nature.

"The Authority on Authorities"

CONSIDER YOUR ENEMY

Against one kind of enemy a good general will adopt a certain plan of campaign. Against a different one, another sort of tactics will prove more advisable. So it is when you think of doubling the other fellow's contract. If he is the kind of cardsman who is likely to take the fullest advantage of the information conveyed by the double, you had better be wary about making it. But if he is one of those stodgy fellows who disregards such a favor, then go ahead and take a chance if you feel like it.

♠ 9 ♥ 9 8 7 6 5 3 ♦ J ♣ K J 10 7 6	N. W. E. S.	♠ K Q 8 ♥ 2 ♦ Q 10 8 6 2 ♣ Q 9 8 5
	♠ A J 10 7 6 4 ♥ Q ♦ A K 9 7 4 3 ♣ None

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	2 ♥	Dbl	Pass
4 ♦	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ♥	Pass
5 NT	Pass	6 ♦	Pass
6 ♠	Pass	Pass	Dbl

In a rather strong duplicate game, every table reached the spade small slam, but some of the East players had enough self-restraint to refrain from doubling. In all of those cases, the contract was set, because the declarer played the trumps unhappily. In one of those situations, the heart 5 was led to the Q and the spade A laid down. The spade J then lost to the Q and East also cashed the spade K to take out dummy's last trump. The diamond 2 then went to the J, whereupon the declarer lost two more diamond tricks because he could not get into the dummy, so he was down three.

In most cases where the double was made by East, the declarer made his contract. Instead of letting the heart lead run to the Q, he overplayed it with dummy's A, so he could lead for a spade finesse. East ducked the 2, and the 10 won. The diamond A was cashed and the diamond 3 ruffed by the spade 3. The club A furnished a discard of the diamond 4, then the heart K was ruffed by the spade Q and overruffed by the A. Next the diamond 7 was trumped by the spade 5 and the heart J led. East ruffed with the spade K, but South discarded his diamond 9 and had nothing left in his hand but good cards. East returned the club Q, but South ruffed, cashed three trumps and took in the diamond K for the final trick.

Question of Food or Finer Home Decided

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

"Dear Dr. Myers: I am a widow with four children, three boys, ages 9, 11, 13, and one girl age 4.

"Our total income is about $50 a month As you know this is a very small amount to raise four children on. I have two sisters and three brothers but they all have families and cannot help.

"My problem is this: I am living in a poor neighborhood, as I have to live in a very low-priced place. My relatives think I should move to a better section, even if it meant cutting down on food and clothing. I do not agree with them as I think it is more important for growing children to have good food. As it is, it takes all my ingenuity to contrive well-balanced meals on what I have to spend for food. I do all my own baking and other work. Although I am of this opinion, at the same time it worries me that perhaps I am not doing the best thing for the children. At present they are very good, honest children, although the boys are a little boisterous, they are healthy and seem to be sound in every way."

Agreed With Mother.

I wrote this mother that I agreed with her. If this mother can provide the children with wholesome food, her love, companionship and wise guidance of them should be able to prevail against the probable unfavorable community influences. She cannot be sure that a neighborhood in which she paid twice as much for rent would have a better moral atmosphere. Obviously this mother's relatives are thinking chiefly of what their friends might think.

It is the American way for families to live in the most high-priced community they can afford. Many seem to make the choice largely from the angle of appearance. Some parents, indeed, choose an area in which to live far higher in price than their income can afford. They must cut somewhere. Therefore it may be on food, medical and dental care. These parents must themselves decide, of course. But young parents considering the kind of community (economically) in which they should rent or own a home should count first on the bare necessities of food and health care, on some insurance for the family's protection and on some savings for the children's education. Living in a neighborhood or up to a standard beyond the reasonable limits of the income, is hardly favorable to family happiness

A selected list of books and pamphlets on rearing and guiding children happily may be had without cost by writing me at 235 E. 45th St., New York City, N. Y., enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Solving Parent Problems.

Q Should parents sit up and wait till the youth comes in at night?

A Not as a rule, except, perhaps, as a gesture of affection and companionship: certainly not as a means to check or hold an inquisition.

Q. Suppose a tot of one of two will accept ministries, as having a drink of water, from the mother only

A. Let him learn he cannot choose. When such whims appear it is well for the mother to do less for the baby and have others do more for him.

CABBAGE BOWL

A scooped out cabbage makes a novel container for crisp vegetable salad. Carefully remove the center of a firm young cabbage. Chop the removed cabbage and mix in some seasonings and salad dressing. Roughly refill the cabbage with the salad. Sprinkle the top with chopped parsley and grated raw carrots.

"Where and when," says Carl Graham, "did the Braves get this Don May, the good left-handed pitcher with Findlay last year?"

"This is all news to me," I told him. "I'll have to look into this. But I recall there was a Don May in that picture of the Braves we carried Sunday."

"If we've got the Findlay Don May, then we've really got ourselves a good southpaw chucker," says Carl. So away I rush in hot pursuit of the yarn.

"Who is this left-handed pitcher, Don May?" I ask Braves' Manager Alex Clowson.

"He was with Findlay last year," he informs me.

"That I already know," I told him, "but when did the Braves sign him?"

"We haven't got him."

"Then who is the Don May we have got?"

"That Don May. He's our BATBOY."

There I was, all full of business about a batboy. What a dull thud there was when that story fell through.

Track has been on the down grade at Mt. Vernon since Paul Snyder left to become football coach at Mansfield high. In fact it's gone all the way down the grade and now doesn't even exist.

Spiv Harris, Mt. Vernon News sports editor, explains the failure of the Yellow Jackets to enter last Saturday's N. C. O. league meet here by saying: "Track was officially dropped two weeks ago when Coach Larry Swackhammer found none of the lads cared enough about the sport to practice.

"Fine business," says Spiv. "And to think that back in the spring of 1937 Paul Snyder, then Jacket athletic director, was greeted by 57 boys when Mt. Vernon high revived track after a lapse of 12 years.

"In 1928 Mt. Vernon was host to the first N. C. O. meet."

So do a dirge for poor Swackhammer,
His Jackets have lost their old track glamour.

Johnny Appleseed girls are scheduled for practice Thursday at 8:30 a. m. and Appleseed boys at 1 p m High school classes will be sandwiched in during the week

Feller, Harder Picked

Peck Starts Right Hand Hurlers Against Yanks.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians dropped out of the beat-the-Yankees-with-southpaws club in selecting Bob Feller to face the New Yorkers today and Mel Harder tomorrow. Both are right-handers.

The biggest factor in Manager Roger Peckinpaugh's choice was the rough treatment the Yanks gave Al Milnar and Al Smith, Cleveland's top portsiders, in beating the Indians twice last week.

* * *

The tussles here open a 10-game eastern stand for the Redskins, who now sports a two and a half-game margin over second-place Boston.

The Yankees called on Marius Russo, a curve-ball southpaw, to open the series

Roy Weatherly was slated to return to center field, bringing another shakeup in the batting order. He has recovered from a shoulder injury suffered in crashing into a wall in St. Louis.

Roy takes over the lead-off spot again, with Lou Boudreau dropping to second, Gerry Walker to third and Ken Keltner to sixth.

The Indians came east with their squad pared to the regulation 25 players Pitcher Nate Andrews was optioned to Milwaukee of the American Association, leaving the club with 10 pitchers, seven outfielders, six infielders and two catchers.

The heaviest pressure in the Major leagues today is not on the first-place clubs It is on the World Champion Cincinnati Reds and the once invincible New York Yankees, both of whom are in fourth place in their respective leagues and virtually at the crossroads of the pennant trail.

Their predicaments are strangely similar Each has lost five of its past seven games Each has had trouble rounding out its pitching staff. Each has been in a batting slump Each will be at home today and tomorrow for a two-game series with the league leaders—the Brooklyn Dodgers at Cincinnati and the Cleveland Indians at New York

The Reds were humiliated 12-1 yesterday by the Chicago Cubs and left staggering on the fringe of the second division in a fourth-place tie with the Boston Braves.

The Dodgers, on the other hand, have won five in a row and 20 of their past 23 since getting off on the wrong foot against the New York Giants The St Louis Cardinals also have righted themselves after losing three straight in the east and as the result the Reds not only are 8½ games out of first place but are seven full games away from second

The Cardinals conquered Pittsburgh again yesterday 6-2 with a 13-hit attack and the smooth, seven-hit pitching of Lon Warneke It was the fourth victory without defeat for the veteran right-hander

The Yankees were whipped 8-4 by the Boston Red Sox with old Lefty Grove spacing 10 hits for the 295th triumph of his career and his second of the season The Sox made only eight blows but bunched five with a half-dozen walks by Lefty Gomez for all of their runs in the first three innings Jimmie Foxx hit a homer with two on in the first inning.

The only Yankee victories in their past seven contests were two surprise conquests last week at Cleveland when the Indians still had their heads in the clouds from an 11-game winning streak

The Washington Senators subdued the Philadelphia Athletics 5-1 in yesterday's only other Major league encounter Dutch Leonard pitched six-hit ball for his third straight success Washington's eight timely hits included a homer by Jim Vernon

SHOOTING SEASONS OPEN AND CLOSE

Mansfield's rifle and pistol shooting indoor range was closed for the season with week-end firing but the outdoor season opens Sunday on the Gasco range near Ontario

Teams expected to shoot Sunday in individual and two-man matches include Ashland, Mansfield club Richland club, Bucyrus, Crestline and Galion.

BUCKEYES WIN

COLUMBUS —(AP)— The Ohio State university baseball team attempted to make it two straight over the University of Kentucky nine here today as the two teams concluded their series. The Buckeyes took the series opener yesterday in 10 innings, 4 to 3 after coming from behind to tie the score in the last of the ninth.

BOUT APPROVED

CHICAGO — (INS) — Promoter Bill Rand had a "go ahead" from the Illinois boxing board today on his plan to offer a 15-round title bout May 25 between NBA Middleweight Champion Tony Zale and Challenger Al Hostak of Seattle. The fight, if arranged, will be held at the Chicago stadium.

REGAINS CROWN

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Joey Archibald, the "patent leather kid" of Providence, R. I. today is again recognized as the featherweight champion after regaining his title by a 15-round upset of Harry Jeffra, of Baltimore.

How Good Is Whirler? This Shows

This is the start of the Preakness race at Pimlico track, Baltimore, Md. Note No. 1, the last horse to leave the starting gate. Yep, that's Whirlaway, who proved his class among the three-year-olds by coming from far behind to not only win the race, but win it by five lengths! Whirly was seven lengths behind the leader at the half mile, but overcame that handicap to win easily. A week ago, Whirly won the Kentucky Derby by a big margin, too.

Don't look now, but 55 runs have been piled up against the Emory and Henry baseballers in their past two games . . RULED OFF BIKE

POMPTON LAKES, N. J. —(INS)— Lightweight Champion Lew Jenkins today was under promise to keep off his new motorcycle, until at least such time as he has fought Bob Montgomery in a non-title match at Madison Square Garden Friday night. State Boxing Commissioner John J. Phelan extracted the promise from the champ that he would not ride the motor bike into New York City before the fight.

Reds Depend Upon Walters

But Bucky Can't Depend on Reds For Help.

CINCINNATI —(AP)— You can usually depend on the World Champion Cincinnati Reds to get one run in a game, but you can't always make the other team get along on none.

That seems to be the main difficulty as the Brooklyn Dodgers bustle out for their first series on the home grounds of the team that made them postpone all their hopes and desires last year.

It seems that if Bucky Walters is to get his fifth victory of 1941, which, as baseball seasons go, is getting along fast, he must do it with a shut-out. However he has no guarantee that Hugh Casey, the Dodger hurler for the day, can't hang the same thing on the Reds.

Hugh is one of a number of Brooklyn pitchers who have beaten the Reds resoundingly this year, and Bumky is the only Red heaver who has beaten Brooklyn. That took 11 innings.

It was well demonstrated yesterday that one run is not enough to win a ball game, especially when the other team the Chicago Cubs in this particular instance, scores an even dozen

It was also well demonstrated that Monte Pearson of the Reds is not the same Monte Pearson who never lost a World series game for the New York Yankees, at least not now

Monte didn't stay in long enough, of course, for any seasoned judgments to be formed. With one out in the second, Monte retired after giving the Cubs seven runs, enough to win many a game here.

What with five bases on balls and some inexpert ball-handling by the Cincinnati defense, the Cubs simply helped themselves and tossed in a couple of hits just to show that it wasn't all a gift.

Messrs Jim Turner and Whitey Moore followed with no great achievement to point to, although no runs were scored off Whitey.

Patterson or Byers to Get Opening Game Hill Choice

Clowson Leans to Veterans For Task of Turning Back Pandas

IT NOW LOOKS like either Chuck Byers or "Sky" Patterson will take over the pitching duties for the Braves' inaugural game with the Lima Pandas at the Fairground Wednesday after Mayor W. J. Locke tosses the ceremonial first ball plateward.

Manager Alex Clowson reduced the probable opening game pitching field to these two right handers last night after the Braves held their first workout under the lamps in preparation for the invasion of the defending Ohio State league champions.

Both Byers and Patterson are hold-overs from last season, and Clowson nominated this pair as probabilities because of their experience.

The Braves' chieftain also indicated that another veteran, Tim Mangan, will be back of the plate and bat in the second slot, with Shortstop Bob Ankrum leading off.

Bill Salem, left fielder, will bat third, Clowson announced, with the popular Harry Siegbert, first baseman, in the clean-up spot.

Clowson will start at second base Wednesday night in place of Bob TeStruth, who is nursing a badly injured finger on his throwing hand, the result of a collision with a batted ball, and bat in fifth place.

The next batting post will be filled by either Dick Morse or Grafton Moore, depending on which gets the nod to hold down third base Wednesday. Centerfielder Bill McGrath and Rightfielder Bruce Williams will precede the pitcher.

Manager Otis Brannan of Lima does not know his batting order but the following are possibilities to play.

Outfield, Mal Turner or Turner Clayton, lf; Gene Kavanaugh, cf; Jack Bradley, rf, Johnny Cindric, 1b; Otis Brannan 2b; Naaman Williams, ss; Gene Heathcote, 3b; Bud Barlow, catcher; Al Boskey, Dick Magato or Bob Snoddy, pitcher. Snoddy is not signed as yet but may pitch if under contract.

All is in readiness for the home inaugural, and the Braves will hold their final workout before the shove-off under the lights at the Fairground at 8 o'clock tonight.

Tomorrow's opening game is billed to start at 8 p m., with the pre-game ceremonies getting under way at 7.30 President George Satterlee promised today that the ceremonies would be brief.

In addition to having the mayor toss out the first ball, the Mansfield players, mostly strangers to the fans this year will be introduced at home plate. A band will also be on hand to lend a festive atmosphere to the occasion.

A good-sized crowd was on hand at last night's drill, and it was treated to a display of bat pyrotechnics. The Braves confined their 1941 night debut to rattling the fences with line drives. A number of balls were also pounded out of the park.

The hitting exhibition presented by his hirelings last night convinced Clowson that night ball will not seriously effect their work.

* * *

The box-office will be open at the Fairground at 8 o'clock tonight to accommodate those wishing to purchase the special $2 season ticket.

School Teams Have Busy Day

Four Games Played In Softball Circuit.

Bowman softballers edged Carpenter 5 to 4 at North Park while Prospect defeated West Fifth 6 to 2 at the Armory, Western trounced Brinkerhoff 13 to 2 at Maple lake, and Woodland edged Bushnell 10 to 9 in a clash on the Woodland diamond yesterday in games of the Grade school league.

Carpenter had a 4 to 0 lead in the third inning but Bookmyer smacked the apple for a homer for Bowman which started a rally that ended in a 5 to 4 victory.

The score in the Prospect-West Fifth contest stood 6 to 2 from the second inning on, each team playing a defense that was too strong for either one's offense.

Western won the game from Brinkerhoff in the first inning, scoring 7 runs and playing superior ball throughout the game.

Woodland in its tilt with Bushnell started with a 4 to 1 lead in the first inning. Bushnell didn't score again till the fifth when they made 2 runs. In the sixth they made a five run rally but couldn't keep up the pace to win the game.

Hens Beat Blues In 15 Innings

(By Associated Press)

Only one game is scheduled tonight in the American Association, but even this abbreviated slate will be sufficient to break the first place deadlock between Minneapolis and Kansas City

The Millers meet the neighboring St. Paul clan for the first time this season and a victory would put the Minneapolis sluggers in sole possession of first place; conversely, defeat would drop them into a second place tie with Louisville.

Kansas City lost an opportunity to strengthen its hold on the top spot yesterday when Toledo outlasted the Blues, 4 to 3, in 15 innings.

Minneapolis defeated Louisville 8 to 6, squelching a ninth inning rally after the Colonels had scored four runs

Fourth-place Columbus, the preseason flag favorite, climbed to within one game of the co-leaders by whipping the cellar Milwaukee Brewers, 8 to 2.

Indianapolis, like Toledo, regained a .500 rating by crushing St. Paul under a 12 to 3 score.

JEFFRA FAVORED TO BEAT ARCHIBALD

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Harry Jeffra of Baltimore, recognized as the featherweight champion in New York, Maryland, Pennsylvania and California, today was rated an 8 to 5 choice to knock off Joey Archibald of Providence, R. I, in their 15-round title fight tonight.

Tonight's fight will be the first step toward clearing up the clouded featherweight class as Petey Scalzo, recognized by the National Boxing association as the featherweight titleholder, has been ordered to meet the winner.

Archibald and Jeffra broke even in two previous meetings.

NEW YORK —(INS)— The New York boxing commission today planned to study the protested decision in which Billy Soose lifted the world (New York variety) middleweight championship from Ken Overlin last Friday night.

Tigers Lose Without Hank

By HARRY FERGUSON

NEW YORK —(AP)— Scattered photographs containing scattered thoughts.

It can't go on forever, of course, but the Detroit Tigers haven't won a ball game since Hank Greenberg left them almost a week ago to join the army. Just to show you how much the big guy's bat is missed, the Tigers have scored only seven runs in four games.

Looks like Jockey Arcaro won't be in the saddle when Whirlaway tries to make it three in a row in the Belmont Stakes on June 7. He is under contract to Mrs Payne Whitney who may have a couple of horses in there herself, in which case she will want Arcaro to be up on one of them. The switch in jockeys ought to throw some light on whether Whirlaway has been cured of drifting on the turns. He was doing it consistently until Arcaro took him over in the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness

The big parade from the major leagues to the minors is on. All major league teams must reduce their player rosters to 25 men by Thursday midnight. Among the first to go are three veterans—Dick Bartell, released by the Detroit Tigers; Paul Waner, cut lose by the Brooklyn Dodgers and Van Mungo, also trimmed off the Dodgers. Every year about this time ball players get that strained, worried look unless they have their jobs cinched.

Clark Shaughnessy, who brought Stanford from the bottom to the heights last season, is going to conduct a school for football coaches this summer. That means that the autumn probably will see a swing to the T-formation attack all over the country. Shaughnessy and George Halas of the Chicago Bears are the ones who swept the college and professional ranks last year with the model T.

PAIRINGS MADE FOR INVERNESS TOURNEY

TOLEDO—(INS)—Pairings of 16 leading golfers for the annual invitational golf meet got under way today for the annual four-ball classic to be held here June 19-21.

Floyd Mangrum, last of the entrees to be signed on Saturday, assured Inverness officials of eight teams to compete in the round-robin tournament

Among those signed are last year's winning team of Ralph Guldahl and Sam Snead; Byron Nelson, Jimmy Thomson, Johnny Revolta and Henry Picard, two-time winners, Lawson Little, National Open king, Johnny Bulla, Horton Smith, Ben Hogan, Ed Dudley, Clayton Heafner, Harold McSpaden, Dick Metz and Jimmy Demaret.

TY COBB SUED FOR 15-CENT PARKING

PALO ALTO, Cal. —(INS)— Ty Cobb, who achieved baseball immortality through his fighting heart, found himself in the middle of a different kind of battle today—A lawsuit filed against him for 15 cents.

It was Arnold "Parkey" Sharkey, former prizefighter, who brought the action in Palo Alto small claims court on a charge that Cobb drove out of his parking station without paying the fee. It cost the former pugilist $1.50 to file the 15-cent suit.

STOCKS EDGE UPWARD, BUT LACK VIGOR

Traders Step Lightly on Mystery of Rudolf Hess Flight.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Stocks edged upward in today's market without displaying any real vigor.

There seemingly was quite a bit of "wishful thinking" in boardrooms regarding the flight of Nazi chieftain Hess from Germany but most potential buyers inclined to step carefully pending clarification of the mystery.

A jump of more than $2 a bale in cotton futures helped sustain speculative sentiment. Bonds were mixed.

Among supported stocks on the early shift were U. S. Steel, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Douglas Aircraft, Western Union, General Electric and American Smelting.

Market analysts saw further confirmation of the upswing of industry in the statement of Federal Reserve member banks in 101 cities for the week ended May 7 disclosing another substantial expansion in commercial, industrial and agricultural loans. The total jumped $36,000,000 to $5,568,000,000. a new high for the move and something like ten years as well.

HESS' CAPTOR TELLS HIS STORY

Says Nazi Showed Pictures of Young Son, Chatted With His Hostess on Farm.

He smiled at me and when I assisted him to his feet he thanked me, but I saw he had injured his foot somehow.

I helped him to the house, where my mother and sister got out of bed and prepared tea. They smiled when he remarked: "I am fond of this country."

He refused tea and said he would accept only a glass of water.

I sent word to the authorities, meantime our visitor chatted freely and showed us pictures of his little boy, who he had left behind only four hours before.

I could tell from his speech that he was foreign but he clearly understood every word I spoke. I knew he was "somebody" because he wore a flying suit of magnificent cloth and a watch and identity bracelet of gold.

He didn't discuss his journey. Indeed, he seemed to treat the flight as a pleasure trip. He seemed very confident that he would be treated well and repeatedly remarked how lucky he had been to land without a serious mishap.

He was very gentlemanly to my old mother and my sister and bowed stiffly to them when he entered and left the room. He thanked them profusely before leaving.

He seemed anxious about only one thing. He said to me:

"I should like to keep the parachute. I think I owe my life to it."

The visitor would not tell us who he was and we assumed he was just another German airman who had been brought down.

When officials came on the scene he greeted them with a smile and assured them he was not armed. He held up his arms and allowed them to search him.

Then he was taken away.

ance was creating at least two new positions not classified by the civil service commission. He pointed out that this would necessitate open competitive examinations which would endanger the seniority rights of several workers.

Schultz said that there had been no intention of breaking up civil service and that necessary changes in the schedule would be made.

The new salaries were to go into effect on June 1. The schedule called for the paying of a designated repairman higher salaries than fellow-workers with the same classification.

VIEW FLIGHT AS BLOW TO MORALE

U. S. Observers Bewildered as They Seek Significance of Dramatic Escape.

flight can only dumbfound the average German, it was said. There never had been any question of his loyalty to Hitler in the past.

Diplomatic quarters here also were frankly bewildered as to the complete significance of the entire matter. Apparently authoritative reports reaching the capital, however, agreed on three points; that Hess' identity had been established beyond doubt; that he was perfectly sane, and that he fled Germany for fear of his life.

Information has been reaching London for some time past, it was said, that relations in inner Nazi councils were strained, and Hess' flight was looked on as confirmation of such reports.

Whatever the complicated background, the belief here was that British authorities were alive to the possibility of an audacious Nazi trap, or "plant," and would be exceedingly wary in making use of any information he might offer.

But should his good faith be established beyond doubt, it was pointed out, the British would have a wealth of highly reliable and valuable information at their disposal.
